

PCV Licence Cost

PCV is referred to as a passenger-carrying vehicle. This is the licence that is used to carry passengers in the vehicle that are in the form of buses, minibuses, passenger cars, etc. To get the PCV licence one must be at least 18 years old and have a complete Category B licence to attend any of our PCV Category D courses. If you already have a Category B driver's licence, the first step is to take and pass a PCV medical examination if you haven't given it earlier. There are a majority of queries showcasing the steps of the PCV licence, and then the PCV licence cost.

There are various steps that need to be followed to get the PCV licence. Initially, you need to go through the theory tests followed by the practical training and

PCV Licence Types and PCV Licence Cost

Generally, there are four major types of PCV licences that are settled as per the government guidelines. These are listed below for your reference. Also, all the requirements as well as the PCV licence cost for each category are mentioned in detail.

Category D1

The D1 category is for minibuses, and it permits you to drive one with between 9 and 16 passenger seats. A D1 licence allows drivers to operate vehicles up to 8 metres in length.

For the PCV Licence Cost- Category D1 check out <https://www.gsdrivertraining.com/training-courses/cat-d1/>

Category D1+E

Category D1 +E licence allows you to drive the minibuses with 9 to 26 passengers and can also tow a trailer weighing up to 750 kilograms.

Check out the PCV Licence Cost-Category D1 + E page. <https://www.gsdrivertraining.com/training-courses/cat-d1e/>

Category D

Cat D is a degree of damage used by insurance companies to characterise vehicles that have been declared totaled. A Cat D car will have been damaged previously, most likely in an accident.

Check out <https://www.gsdrivertraining.com/training-courses/cat-d/> to know the PCV licence cost- category D1.

Category B + E

In this type of licence, you can tow a trailer with a maximum approved mass of 750 kg to 3,500 kg while driving a passenger car. The vehicle carries a maximum of 8 passengers.

How to get a PCV Licence?

1. Initially, a person should be a minimum of 18 years to get the PCV licence.
2. Holding a full car licence.
3. Applying for the provisional entitlements on your licence.
4. Getting the medical test done as per the government guidelines.
5. Opting for Theory and the practical tests demonstrated by the government.

Conclusion

All in all, it is clear that a PCV licence is also known as a passenger-carrying vehicle. There are different licences introduced for different types of PCV vehicles. These different PCV vehicles not only allow you to drive the different vehicles in this category but also the passenger carrying strength as well as the towing strength is different in all the cases. These are interrelated to each other but need to be managed appropriately to have a better outlook on the PCV licence category. Also, all the PCV licence costs are mentioned in a deeper aspect above, get in touch with us at GS Driver Training (<https://www.gsdrivertraining.com/>) for better outcomes in this perspective.

Frequently Asked Questions

How long does it take to attain a PCV licence?

The average time it takes to receive a PCV provisional licence is roughly three weeks.

What to do if you wish to get the PCV Licence?

Before sending your application form to the DVLA, make an appointment with your doctor.

What are the theory tests designed for PCV licence?

PCV licence theory test consists of Multiple choice, hazard perception, and the PCV Case Studies.

What is to be done once the theory tests are cleared?

Get in touch with the best driving schools nearby you like GS Driver Training and get through the practical training lessons.

Once cleared off the tests am I able to drive the PCV vehicles legally?

No, you will have to take your CPC module 4 test for professional driving experiences.

What is the acquisition process for a PCV licence?

You need to follow the criteria to have safe and legal driving experiences. The process includes various steps. These are:

- Medical
- Provisional licence application
- Theory training

- Theory test
- Practical training lessons
- Practical test
- CPC module 4 training
- CPC module 4 Test

Also Read: HGV Licence Cost